DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because reference is made to a figure, as shown by the numerical references. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).
2. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: On pg.9, lines 21, "coverts" should be "converts".

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.
4. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1-7 are vague and indefinite as written. For example, the limitations performing predetermined processing and address conversion information are vague and indefinite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2616

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1-5 and 7 (as best understood) are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Skells (WO 00/33536).

Re claims 1-5:

Skells discloses a routing controller, a first router, and a second router (Pg.6 line 11 “a network monitor”).

Skells further discloses a first router (Pg.13 line 19 “make requests for IP addresses to the DNS” where the DNS is a first router).

Skells further discloses a second router (Pg.7 lines 19-20 This enables the proxy process to identify the incoming message as an instruction).

Skells further discloses receiving a predetermined trigger (Pg.12 lines 14-19 As an optional feature, the current connections area of the address table can be used to stored additional information about each connection. This may be performance information, for example network latency, throughput, packet sizes and volume, together with any network or transport failures. Once the information has been gathered under the control of the proxy process, it may be transmitted across the network as input for the network monitor).

Skells further discloses requesting the first router to provide address conversion information in accordance with the received predetermined trigger (Pg.12 lines 14-19 and Pg.13 line 23 – pg.14 line 3 where address conversion information is provided in accordance with the received trigger).

Skells further discloses requesting a second router to perform predetermined processing relating to the address conversion information from the first router (Pg.7 lines 15-27 where the address is processed).

Skells further discloses the first router providing address conversion information in accordance with the request from the routing controller (Pg.12 lines 14-19 and Pg.13 line 23 – pg.14 line 3 where the IP address is provided).

Skells further discloses the second router performing predetermined processing and managing the address conversion information in accordance with the request (Pg.7 lines 15-27 where the address is processed).

Skells further discloses changing a destination address included in the received data based on the address conversion information (Pg.9 lines 14-pg.10 line 2 where the address is changed).

Skells further discloses performing routing processing based on the changed destination (Pg.9 line 26 – pg.10 line 2 where the packet is transmitted).

Re claim 7:

Skells further discloses associating a destination address with a predetermined address (Pg.9 lines 14-pg.10 line 2 where the address is changed).

Skells further discloses encapsulating the destination address with the predetermined address (Pg.5 lines 22-26 where the destination address is encapsulated in the packet).

Skells further discloses routing the received data using the predetermined address (Pg.9 line 26 – pg.10 line 2 where the packet is transmitted).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Skells in view of Shah (US 7,212,527).

Re claim 6:

As discussed above, Skells meets all the limitations of the parent claims.

Skells does not explicitly disclose deleting the address conversion information upon receiving the deleting permission.

Shah discloses deleting the address conversion information upon receiving the deleting permission (Table 1 "delete_flow").

Skells and Shah are analogous because they both pertain to network communications.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Skells to include deleting address conversion information as taught by Shah in order to maintain an update routing table.

Conclusion

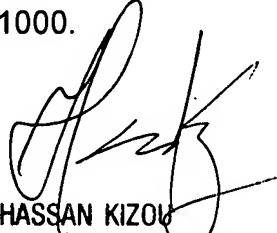

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Brendel (US 5,774,660) discloses changing an address.
